SURRENDER TO END THE WAR.

GENERAL BOTHA AND BOER LEADERS MET KITCHENER.

The Only Reason Why a Surrender Was Not Accomplished Was that Kitchener Had No Power to Grant Terms—Meanwhile the Fighting Goes On.

By Wire to The Telegram:

London, March 8.—A Pretoria dispatch of Tuesday says that Lord Kitchener met General Botha and the other Boer leaders at Middleburg February 27th when the question of the possibility of the termination of hostilities was discussed.

According to the Sun, the surrender would have been an accomplished fact before now had Kitchener been in a position to conclude terms. When the surender of the entire expedition of surrender of the en tire expedition of General Dewet, and involve the termination of the war.

MORE FIGHTING.

London, March 8.—Lord Kitchener wires that the Boers failed in their determined attack upon Lichtenstien, and the Boer General Celieres was killed. French also reports further captures. The total loss of the Boers since the eastern movement began is 979, with many rifles, ammunition, sheep, wagons, and a large quantity of forage.

ARMISTICE GRANTED.

Lorenzo Marquez, March 8—Kitchener has granted Botha a seven days armistice to confer with other generals.

A Fisasco.

The trial of the man Linden, who is a barber at Proximity, for an alleged assault upon the man Duffy, who said he had been held up on Summit avenue, showed that the "hold up" was a farce. The evidence seemed to show that Duffy and the negro who was with him were frightened by Linden and his crowd, who in turn thought that they were about to be attacked.

Squire Wolfe tipped the scales of Justice with the weight of costs and fifty cents fine, on the ground that it was a simple assault.

The man Bowie who was found standing behind a tree on the avenue, and arrested on suspicion, was held for carrying concealed weaons, and will have a trial this afternoon.

The truth of the whole business is that there was no real "hold up on the avenue" on that night.

Opening of Mite Boxes.

The Ladies' Aid and Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies of Grace church have just closed a successful year. The monthly meeting for March was also the annual meeting, at which officers for the coming year were elected and the mite boxes opened. Means are secured by the use of mite boxes to educate a girl in Japan. The members were gratified to find that these boxes contained more than $50, thus affording enough to support the girl for one year and add $10 or more to a reserve fund. Interest was shown by the large attendance and the joining of new members. Delegates were elected to attend a convention of the North Carolina branch of the W. F. M. S. to be held in High Point the latter part of this month.

Against Trouble.

Raleigh Times.

The Greensboro Telegram has adopted the linotype machine, and, like the rest of us, is up against improvement and the pi line.

Mr. J. E. Cartland, the merchant tailor, has had large prisms put up outside his front windows for the purpose of casting light into the rear of the building.

Marshal J. M. Milliken is expected to return from Washington tonight.

Mr. J. G. Frazier, of Giulford College, spent the day in the city.

THE NEW CHARTER.

General Glenn Writes that it Gives Much Power to Aldermen.

The following letter has been sent to The Telegram with request to publish:

Hon. A. M. Scales, City Attorney, Greensboro, N. C.

Dear Sir—I received the city charter as revised by yourself and Board of Aldermen on Monday, March 4, 1901. As the session of the Legislature is about over it is necessary in order to get the bill passed to rush it as fast as possible, as it has to be voted on three separate days in both branches of the General Assembly. I am very sorry indeed that cicumstances were such that the charter could not have been prepared at an earlier date so that the citizens of Greensboro could have been thoroughly informed as to its provisions, as there are some entirely new features added and some changed very materially, and some that give the Aldermen a very wide scope of power over the rights of citizens of the city, but as a delay will cause the bill to fail to pass and as it is important the charter should be amended in many respects, I have had the bill to pass the Senate exeactly as prepared by the Aldermen of the city as I have faith in their judgment and discretion and cannot believe they will exercise the powers given them in any manner that would be harsh or against the best interest of any citizen of the city.

The charter has been sent over to the House of Representatives today.

Yours truly,
JAS. D. GLENN.

Raleigh, March 7.

WORK OF A FOUR YEAR OLD

Little George Brandt Comes Near Burning His Father's Dwelling.

About half past nine o'clock this morning the fire alarm was given and the department called to the intersection of North Davie and East Gaston streets, where the firemen found an outhouse on the premises of Mr. L. J. Brandt wrapped in flames, inside and outside. The large dwelling was even then about to take fire. As soon as a hose was placed the fire was controlled and finally put out.

The house which was almost totally destroyed, was a servants house, but then unoccupied. Little George, the four-year-old son of Mr. Brandt, said that he started the fire. He was playing in the house and found a match, which he proceeded to strike and put in contact with some rubbish in the house. He ran out and left the fire, and pretty soon, Mrs. Brandt's sister, went out to look for George, and went into the house and discovered the fire. As she stepped into the door the flames were already burning so fiercely as to burn her face and singe her hair.

The house was a well built one and a small loss was sustained.

Smothered by Palate Growth.

Philadelphia Record.

A strange and horrible death was that met by Robert White while he was engaged in his work at the Baldwin Locomotive Works yesterday. The man had been troubled for years with a growth on the end of his palate, which he refused to have cut off. The growth was drawn by the man's breath into the windpipe opening and while thus fixed the man was smothered to death.

Fellow-workmen were terror-stricken when they beheld White unable to speak, turn black in the face and then fall to the floor in terrible paroxyisms. The patrol was summoned, and the inmate form was huried to the Hahnemann Hospital, where it was found useless to take the man from the wagon for he was dead. The body was removed to the man's late home, No. 1408 Brown street.

A citizen enquires at The Telegram office to know what the present standing of the hog law is. He says if it is operative he'd like for it to reach far enough to get the pens off Bilbro Alley and Worth street.

HOUSE MANAGERS ANSWER.

THEIR REPLY COUCHED IN GENERAL TERMS AND NOTHING NEW.

They Desire No More Time and the Impeachment Court Adjourned to Meet Next Monday—The Normal's Graduates to be Required to Stand Examination.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, March 8.—In the House today Representative Graham made another attempt to secure the adoption of his amendment to the revenue act taxing the gross earnings of railroads, but it was voted down nearly two to one.

The court of Impeachment convened at 12:30, and the replication by the House Board of Managers to the Judges' answer was read.

It is only general detail, without specification or new matter.

The Managers said they wanted no further time, and the court adjourned until noon Monday.

The Senate and House passed the bill abolishing the exemption of the State Normal and Industrial College and other schools as to examinations for teacher's cetificates and graduates of these schools will be required to stand examinations as others.

The House passed the revenue bill on its third reading.

Returning Radicals.

A good many Republicans are returning from witnessing the inauguration of President McKinley at Washington Monday. Several passed through the city last night, among whom were, Mr. George K. Pritchard, son of Senator Pritchard, returning to his home in Bakersville; Deputy Collector T. F. Rowland, of Yancey county; Sheriff R. S. Ramsey, of Madison county, and United States Commissioner C. F. Baker, of Bakersville.

Some Needs.

"Greensboro," remarked a man on the street this morning, "needs an auction house, where people who have stuff for sale may get it disposed of. It also needs a real estate and brokerage house, a wholesale commission house, a soap factory, a tannery, and a paid man whose duty it should be to show to outside parties that this point offers great advantages to ivestors."

Peter Wagstaff, one of the city's bad characters, is again in trouble. This time it is for carrying concealed weapons and shooting in the city limits.

THE WAY THEY DO IT.

Orthodox Jews Kill Their Beef According to Moses.

Philadelphia Record.

Two long beared Russians with peaked fur caps and long gaberdines, meet with solemn salutations shortly after sunrise every morning at the entrance to the abattoir, in West Philadelphia. With their hands tucked up their sleeves, in Oriental fashion, they proceed to the killing house, with their long machette-like knives, in soft leather scabbards, dangling at their sides.

Each man is a Schoched, a butcher of beeves for the Philadelphia orthodox Jews, designated as such according to the old Mosaic laws. Through years of education, under masters of their craft, they have been trained to kill in the manner that has been required among the Hebrews for thousands of years. They have a religious importance, and the pale-faced Russians, with patriarchal beards, might well be taken for priests.

SELECT STEERS AND SHARPEN KNIVES.

The Russians did a hard day's work yesterday and each received a stipulated sum per head for the animals slaughterd. During the early hours they carefully inspected all the cattle in the pens before selecting those that seemed to comply with minute specifications of the law. These were without a visible blemish, and were thereafter kept together until the hours of slaughter.

While waiting their turn to slaughter on the killing platform the Russians stood in a corner, knives in hand. The knives, or rather swords, were wicked-looking blades, nearly a yard long, with curved black handles. The steel, of the finest make, bent like a Damascus blade under examination. The killers sharpened their knives in an interesting but dangerous manner. After rubbing a coarse whetstone upon a small fine one three inches long each Russian took the latter between the thumb and first finger and began upon it with the knife in long sweeps.

Up and down the razor-edged blades slid, only a hair's breadth from the manipulators fingers, but with complete indifference the men watched the cattle instead of the blades, meanwhile humming a doleful chant as an accompaniment to the rasping of the knives upon the stone.

ONE DRAW AND THE ANIMAL IS DEAD.

The burly abattoir killers whose method is accounted satisfactory to Gentiles first began this work. A steer was selected and felled to the floor with one blow from a heavy hammer. A noose was adjusted and the stunned animal was cut vertically in the throat, in order to injure the hide as little as possible, and the steer was then strung up to bleed to death.

It was then the Schoched's turn. He stopped his chant and examined his blade. If a nick should be found it could not be used. Wetting his fingers the Russian drew it carefully along the edge with a delicate touch. A steer was snared around the hind legs and thrown on the platform. It struggled in a frenzied effort to escape, while blade in hand, the Schoched stood waiting his chance to cut. According to the law he is allowed but one stroke, and should he fail in this the animal would be useless as meat for the orthodox Jews.

The captive threw back its head with a shake of its horns, and, like a cat, the Schoche pounced upon it. With the hilt of the blade at his throat he drew the bright blade across, with the proficiency of a 'cellist drawing the bow across his instrument. One stroke, and the head was severed except at the back bone.

EXAMINED MEAT FOR DEFECTS.

After the animal had bled to death it was examined with the greatest care, and every part of it having been found sound, according to the law, a crescent was stamped on its shoulder, which means "kosher," or sound, and signifies that the meat can be consumed by Hebrews.

A second steer was killed, but on examining the lungs the Schoched discovered a tiny adhesion of one of them to a rib. Summoning his companion, they carefully pulled the lung

MOB ATTACKS SCHOOL TEACHER

PORTO RICANS GET INFURIATED AT AMERICANS.

When the Mob Was Attaking the House in Which the Man Was, Runaway Soldiers Saved the Day.

By Wire to The Telegram:

San Juan De Porto Rico, March 8—A serious riot ocurred here yesterday. Five artillerymen accomuanied by a corporal named Hiscock, left the post without orders and charged across a plaza into a street in which a mob of people had assembled. They then fired a volley into the mob, and rescued School Superintendent Armstrong, who was beseiged by a mob, in a house about a block from the city's centre. The house, previous to the rescue had been overrun with the rioters, who probably numbered fifteen hundred and shouted "down with the Americans" and other cries.

The excitement originated in a trival school incident, in which Superintendent Armstrong reprimanded a girl and marched her harmlessly but forcibly to the front from the rear of the school. The girl reported that she had been kicked and abused, and the Superintendent and police were stoned as they passed from the school house to their homes. As the crowd increased they sought refuge in building, and the police were ordered out by the Governor. The police fired a hundred shots into the air. The artillerymen and Hiscock were arrested.

Conductor Found Dead.

By Wire to The Telegram:

New York, March 8.—Conductor Forsythe was found dead, with a bullet wound in the temple, this morning alongside his car on Fifty Ninth street. on the Crosstown line, which had apparently been abandoned near the terminal. Motorman Quinn was missing at the same time but was found in bed with his clothes on. No revolver or money was found on him. The money in Forsythe's pocket was undisturbed. Quinn had quarrelled with Forsythe two weeks ago.

The Blackened District.

Correspondence of The Telegram.

High Point, March 7.—Today at noon it was thought the residence of Mr. Donahue Smith, on Steele street, was on fire. An alarm was given and people hurried there, but it was soon found that the house was not in danger. Smoke from a defective flue had gathered under the roof and was coming out through the weather boarding and around the chimney which caused the scare.

The burned district presents an ugly appearance but we learn will be built back at an early date if brick, which seems to be the scarcest article just now, can be secured.

The shifting engine did good work in the fire yesterday by bringing water from the water station.

The Spinisters Convention will be held here in the Business Men's Hall Thursday night, March 14.

Mr. A. B. Sapp is confined to his room with an aggravated case of the grip.

At the Theatre.

The Packard Opera Company which appeared at the Academy last night, left this morning for Winston. They were greeted here by a fairly good house, and gave a reasonably fair production.

The "Side Tracked" Company arrived on the noon train today form the South and will hold forth at the Academy tonight.

SHOT AT UNCLE AND HIT GRANDMOTHER

Young Man and His Brother Fight Their Uncle and the Fight Ends Disastrously.

Chester, Pa., March 5.—Fleeing from the house of his enraged nephew, David Cluelow, a well-known football player of Upland, a suburb of this city, escaped the bullet meant for him, but to his horror it crashed through the window of his own home, and entered his aged mother's head.

Cluelow lives with his mother on Main street, near front, and just across the street is the house of his sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Derbyshire, a widow. Shortly after supper this evening Cluelow crossed Main street and entered the house of his sister. An altercation ensued between Cluelow and his two nephews.

Just what that quarrel was about has not been learned at this time, but the words ran high, and it is alleged that Cluelow, losing his temper, used strong language, which enraged the Derbyshire boys.

SHRIEK FOLLOWED SHOT.

The quarrel ragedfiercely, and finally John Derbyshire ordered his uncle out of the house. This was resented by Cluelow, who, it said, seized a chair as young Derbyshire advanced upon him and hurled it at his nephew. Whether or not Derbyshire had secured a revolver at that time is not known, but people passing in the neighborhood saw Cluelow dash out of his sister's house and dart across the street, with John Derbyshire in pursuit.

The young man held revolver in his hand, and almost as Cluelow gained the door of his own home the nephew fired. The next instant there was a wild shriek from the Cluelow house, and the inmates who had been startled by the crack of the revolver, followed by the tinkling of shattered glass, saw the aged mother stagger and fall. They rushed to her side and were terror-stricken at the appearance of a ghastly wound on her left temple.

STRICKEN WITH REMORSE.

In the meantime young Derbyshire's rage had cooled, and when he learned that he had shot his grandmother his grief was terrible to see, as the wound appeared to be a terrible one.

Dr. H. L. Crothers found tnat the bullet had entered Mrs. Cluelow's head, near the temple, and, striking the skull, was deflected and passed out of the forehead above the left eye. Although over 70 years of age, Mrs. Cluelow is a vigorous woman, and may recover. No arrests have been made in the case as yet, but County Detective Berry will invesetigate it.

Cluelow, who is about 29 years of age, played fullback on the Defender football team of Chester this season, and is employed at the Aberfoyle Mills. is an athelete, and is said to be of a quiet disposition. His nephew, John Derbyshire, is a machinist, and also bears a good reputation.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

The importance of the sleeping and bathing arrangement of a house is not half appreciated, writes Maria Parloa in the Novemoer Ladies' Home Journal, giving some suggestions as to furnishing the house. Every bedroom should be provided with the essentials for healthful sleep and the daily sponge bath. As nearly as possible the room should be kept free from anything that would tend to contaminate the air. It should be as large as one can afford, and the windows so arranged that they may be opened at the top and bottom. If possible the floor should be bare and the rugs so small that they can be taken outdoors with ease for cleaning and airing. Everything about the room should be washable. The bed should be light and fitted with strong casters, so that they may be readily moved; the spring ought to be firm and strong, and the mattress of a kind that will not allow the heaviest part of the body to sink, and so cause the sleeper to lie in a cramped position. My own preference is for a cheap, hard mattress, next the springs, and a light one of hair on this but any kind of a firm mattress is better than one that is too soft. Above all, do not overfurnish the bed-room.

WHAT FINGER NAILS TELL.

Very long finger-nailed persons are apt to have delicate chests and lungs.

Long nails, very wide at the top and bluish in appearance, denote bad circulation. Long-nailed men and women are less critical and more impressionable than those with short nails.

Long nails indicate ideality and an artistic temperament.

Long nailed people are very apt to be visionary and hate to face disagreeable facts, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Short-nailed women never give up an argument.

A keen sense of humor accompanies short nails.

Short nails, thin and flat at the base, indicate a weak action of the heart.

Short nails, very flat and sunken, as it were, into the flesh at the base are a sign of diseased nerves.

Short nails, very flat and inclined to curve out or lift up at the edges,are the forerunners of paralysis.

Don't scoff at the idea that pressing the ends of the fingers gently will make them assume the shape of the nails, for it is a fact.

Don't use nail bleaches too generously, and don't fail to be stingy of rouge and powder. Let your nails be beautiful, with no visible signs of the manicuring that keeps them pink and lovely.

PRESIDENT DUDLEY HAS THE RIGHT IDEA.

Charlotte Observer.

President Dudley, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College for negroes, at Greensboro, a sensible man, has a sensible communication in The Greensboro Telegram, of Tuesday, upon the education of the negro. He says that his education should be practical and industrial, the idea being that the negro should be taught to do things with his hands, and he evidently believes that the best hope of the race is in agriculture. This paragraph will give a good idea of the argument:

"If these subjects bearing directly upon daily life could be carried into our common schools, if cooking, sewing, laundering, carpentry, or manual training in some form could be carried into our city schools, if agriculture, the most ancient and honorable of all vocations, could be carried into our rural schools, the State would undoubtedly reap far greater returns for its expenditures made in behalf of negro education and those who claim that "to educate a negro is to spoil a field hand" would be made to applaud the results."

Pursuing the subject President Dudley argues that such education as the masses of the negroes need cannot be had by them unless it is carried to them by teachers trained in agriculture and the mechanic arts. It would, therefore, he says, be a blessing to the State if a normal department were established at the Greensboro institution in connection with the existing departments of agriculture, mechanics and domestic science.

We observe that President Dudley has exactly Booker T. Wassington's idea of negro education, and it is undoubtedly the correct one. The real friends of the race, whether they are white or black, are those who want to educate it in practical directions, and the most practical direction is agriculture—agriculture rather, even, than the mechanic arts. Undoubtedly the money now spent upon the colored race in the common schools would be much more judiciously applied if it taught the negro boy how to farm or the negro girl how to cook and launder than it is now when it is spent in the effort, often vain, to give them the basis of a literary education.

A PALE-FACE GIRL

may be almost safely set down as wanting red in her blood. If subject to dizziness, fainting, shortness of breath on slight exertion, no doubt remains.

To want red in the blood is to fail of the good of one's food. Her food is not nourishing her. She needs a change.

The easiest change she can get, and one of the best, is Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It gives her the upper hand in the contest—her food has the upper hand now—she is pale no more.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

clear my skin, my face was in a horrible condition literally covered with red spots, pimples, blackheads, moth patches and freckles. And whenever the weather changed eczema, chap and salt rheum added to my misery. I suffered a thousand deaths, and when I sent for a trial of Mme Ribault's beautifiers just as I had done before time and again with other advertised remedies, I did not expect any results, imagine my surprise when the next day all redness and soreness were gone. At the end of a week my skin began to clear, the freckles and moth patches disappeared and the eczema and salt rheum were completely cured. I improved so wonderfully that my friends did not recognize me, so quickly had the change taken place. My skin is now perfectly lovely, and there is not a blemish or wrinkle anywhere.

I hope all ladies will at least try these marvelous beautifiers."

Do not delay but write immediately. The treatment is harmless, a natural beauty maker and will permanently remove all tan, freckles, moth patches, pimples, blackheads, flesh worms, sunburn, chaps, roughness and any and all skin imperfections no matter what they may be.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8

LET US HOPE IT IS NOT TRUE.

In the Washington correspondence of the Atlanta Constitution we were surprised to read the statement that Senator Clarke talked the River and Harbor bill to death in the expiring moments of the Senate as a result of a desire on the part of Mr. McKinley and the Republican leaders that the bill should be killed. However, the surprising part of the statement can be better understood after reading the following from the Charlotte Observer:

The metropolitan press tells with more or less circumstantiality—The New York Tribune with startling plainness—that the adoption by the Senate of the Republican policy as to Cuba and the Philippines was the result of a bargain. The story is that liberal appropriations were made to the South and West in the river and harbor bill "in return for the Democratic 'lay down' in the Senate on the Philippine and Cuban propositions;" that Tillman of South Carolina was "soothed into silence" by the Charleston Exposition appropriation of $250,000, and that Cockrell of Missouri, "the erstwhile 'wachdog of the Treasury," was won over by the gift of $5,000,000 to the St. Louis fair. This is a scandalous story and needs verification, though the New York Evening Post says that "now that the bargain has been carried through, there is perfect frankness" about its terms. If the facts are as stated it develops that Cockerell is the only one of the negotiators who received his price. The amendment to the sundry civil bill giving $5,000,000 to the St. Louis Exposition was adopted. The Charleston Exposition item and the river and harbor bil. failed at the last moment.

That there was such a bargain is scandalous enough, if there was, but it is said by the Constitution correspondence referred to above, to have been even worse. Not only was there a bargain, it is said, but the Republicans did not even persevere the proverbial honor which is said to exist among thieves, for while making concessions in the River and Harbor bill to the Senators whom they desired to silence, they deliberately laid the plan to put off the vote till the last moment and then have it talked to death.

Senator Tillman, whom in a few respects we admire, denies that he had made such bargain, and the whole thing is next to inconceivable. If it were true it would simply convict the Democratic members of hypocrisy and the Republicans of downright rascality. The burden of the Democratic song has been forever that a great crime against liberty and humanity and even "Jeffersonian principles," was being enacted in the Philippines, yet, if this story be true, and they believe what they have been saying all along, they are traitors to their principles and to their ideas of justice, induced to so be by local appropriations which would gain for each member some good will from his constituents. And if they do not believe what they have so long been saying, they are hypocrites and advertise themselves as simply having posed to deceive the public. So far as the Republicans are concerned, if the story is true, they have been guilty of breaking a solemn promise, of deception, of lying.

We hope that none of the story is true, yet it is a current joke that river and harbor bills are gotten up largely for the purpose of placating members.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie has given $50,000 for a library at Montgomery, Ala. We should like for the former "robber baron" to ive Greensboro about $10,000 for that purpose, but we are not going to wait for him to do so.

For some time the esteemed brethren of the Wilmington Messenger and the Charlote News have been popping at each other on the question of what education does, or does not do, and The Messenger dismisses the controversy with this wave:

The Charlotte News intimates that in regard to education the Messenger has adopted the views of the News. That is hardly fair. The Messenger holds now what it has held through the years. Either the News does not understand the Messenger or vice versa. The Messenger does not believe that education of the schools ever takes the place of the Bible or the faithful preaching of the Word by God's own chosen ministry or of the work of the Holy Spirit. But we do not propose farther to notice criticisms of several papers that either fail to comprehend what we are driving at or have views of education much more etherial and heavenly and all powerful than any we receive as solid, sane and salutary.

Since The Telegram's remark about the Messenger's inconsistency in favoring laws removing the citizens privilege of enjoying a certain kind of smoke and denouncing laws intended to force trifling fathers to give their children some kind of chance in the way of learning to read and write, at least, stirred up the controversy, we may be allowed to put in a word. The word is to call the attention of the Messenger to the fact that nobody that we have ever heard of ever claimed that education ever took the place of the Bible, or preaching, or of the Holy Spirit.

During the strike of the operatives in certain silk mills at Ccranto, Pa., the superintendent of the mill was in Atlanta looking into Southern conditions, and the correspondence with the strikers was carried on by mail. He was accompanied by an owner of three other mills, Mr. Valentine Bliss, of Scranton, who, a press dispatch says, was looking for a place to move one and perhaps all of his mills. There are men looking over the South at most any time with this thing in view. A city like Greensboro should have a paid secretary whose business it would be to look after such.

Elsewhere we publish a comment by The Charlotte Observer on President Dudley's views on negro education as expressed in a recent article in The Telegram of a day or two ago. We have been gratified to know all along that President Dudley held what we consider the right views on the question, and having often talked with him on the subject, we know of his sincerity and earnestness in desiring that the negro shall get on these lines of advancement.

The Good Roads Club is to be congratulated on having practically gotten its bill through the Legislature, which bill is both the authority for an lection for bonds, and, in case they are voted, a statute controlling the spending of the money and the manner of working the roads. Several gentlemen, among them Messrs. J. Van Lindley, J. L. King, W. M. Barber, and J. N. Wilson have given much work to the bill.

THE WAY THEY DO IT.

loose. No tear was visible in the membrane, but if the slightest break should be made the beef could not be used by Hebrews, and the Schoched could receive no pay for his work. To test it more thoroughly, the lung was inflated and beaten to expand all the tiny cells. The old Schoched then spat on his finger and touched the suspicious spot, and a bubble appeared. It was the size of pin-head. The Schoched threw up his hands in disgust. The lung was tore and he would receive no pay for the killing. While a Gentile might eat the beef, a Hebrew —never. The Schoched then marked the shoulder with a reddish line, signifying "trefa," or unsound.

HEBREW METHOD THE BEST.

Dr. James Johnson, the Government expert at the abattoir, says the Hebrew method of killing is the best, extracting more blood, as it does, and making the flesh better, both as to color and taste. He also declares that the killing is entirely painless to the animal.

At the close of the day's work the Schoched collected the streaked red heads, and, piling them together with their staring eyes and tongueless mouths, left them.

For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for croup. It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. It is a specific for grippe and asthama and has long been a well known remedy for whooping cough. Howard Gardner.

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Howard Gardner.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E Holton's drug store.

Headache often results from a disordered condition of the stomach and constipation of the bowels. A dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will correct these disorders and cure the headache. Sold by C. E. Holton.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

DON'T LIKE ARTIFICIAL ICE.

Some Housewives Declare It Is of Little Account for Refrigerating Purposes.

A new grievance has arisen to annoy the housewife. A few years ago, when artificial ice came into vogue, she regarded it as an unmixed blessing that would greatly lessen her tribulations. To-day she complains that it lacks the one essential property of ice—cooling, says the Chicago Chronicle. It does not cool things, she says. Even though the ice box be kept full to the lid with solid cakes the cream sours and the strawberries shrivel, the bottled beer remains tepid, the butter melts and the salad wilts, just as they would were there no ice in the refrigerator. At first this puzzled the housewife. She thought Maria was at fault. But Maria called the saints to witness that she had placed the beer bottles all around the cake of ice, the butter and berries on top and the cream and lettuce close by. The housewife was still doubtful. She spoke of it to a neighbor. "It's the ice," said the neighbor. "I had the some trouble. There is a big-worded scientific explanation of it, which I can't give you. But it's something to know that artificial ice won't keep things cool, as the Jack Frost kind does. It's bad enough when one has a nice, cool cellar in which to keep one's refrigerator, but when it is one of the hardwood set-in apartment kind in a passageway between the kitchen and the dining-room and one expects company to dinner and the blancmange won't jell—"

"Just my experience. We had strawberry custard for dessert—at least we were to have had one. It turned out something between an eggnog and a very fluffy omelet souffle. We drank it. Of course I blamed poor Maria, scolded her for not making the custard in time and for putting too much milk in it. She said that it had been made in time and that she had put it on ice at noon, which seemed incredible, but I believe her now. Things do get cool, but they are no colder after a sojourn of 24 hours in the ice chest than they are after being there one hour. Maria's grudge against the crystal-clear plant ice is bitter. 'Sure, an' it don't lasht long enough to cool annything, annyhow,' she says."

Keep the rubber plant clean by giving it a soap bath, writes Eben E. Rexford, in Ladies' Home Journal. Tall plants can be made to branch by cuting off the tops. But young plants growing to the height of three or four feet in one straight stalk will generally be found more satisfactory, as they will have larger, finer foliage than the old branching plants ever have. When growth is taking place use a fertilizer, as its demands on the soil are great, and ordinary soils are not rich enough to supply all its needs. The secret of the successful culture of the rubber plant consists in always feeding it well at the times when a good deal of food is needed—and by this it will be understood that I refer to its period of growth—and never allowing it to become rootbound. Keep the plant always going ahead, and avoid any treatment that will check its development if you would have a vigorous and healthy specimen. The rubber plant requires a much stronger light than the palm, therefore it is not so well adapted to room decoration in places some distance from the window as the palm is.

A GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by C. E Holton.

PLUCK.

By Laura E. Richards.

(From the Youth's Companion. Reprinted by Special Permission.)

"YES," said the ironmaster, "first honesty, and then pluck—those are the things needful. Speaking of pluck--" He stopped to answer the summons of the telephone, said "Yes," and "No," by turns for five minutes, and then resumed:

"Speaking of pluck, as you were doing just now, reminds me of a story, the beginning and end of which is that one word."

We settled ourselves in our chairs. We were sitting in the office of the iron works, and the air was full of the sound of great hammers, crashing and pounding; of the sharp hiss of molten metal, and the clear ring of smitten steel.

"I was sitting here in this very chair," the ironmaster began, "one day about seven years ago, or maybe eight. Time goes so fast I hardly try to keep count of it in these days. At any rate, here I was sitting, reading the newspaper, when there came a knock at the door.

"'Come in!' I said; and in walked a stranger. He was a young man, about 25 years old, dressed like a gentleman, though his clothes had seen a good deal of service. Tall, with his head held up, and gray eyes that met mine fair and square.

"Aways look first at a man's eyes, my boy! If he looks you in the eye, he is worth trying. If his eyes shift about here and there, as if they didn't know where to look, or were afraid of seeing something they didn't like—have nothing to do with him! That's my experience!

"Well, this young man came up to my desk, and spoke without waiting for me; yet it was no want of manners, for his manners were good.

"'Good morning, sir!' he said; and his voice had a clear ring to it that I liked. 'I want work. Can you give me any?'

"I shook my head. We never took strangers in that way, and I don't recommend the practice at any time.

"'No, sir!' I said. 'We have no work here. Sorry I can't accommodate you.' I took up my paper again, and looked to see him go out without more words, but he stood still. 'I must have work!' he said. 'I would try to give you satisfaction, sir, and I tell you I must have it!'

"'My good sir,' I said, putting the paper down, 'there is no vacancy in the place. If you will give me your name and references, I will make a note of them, and some day when we do have a job to dispose of I will remember you. That is the best I can do for you to-day.'

"The young man shook his head. 'That won't do!' he said. 'Think again, sir. Surely in this great place there must be something a strong, willing man can do. It is useless to talk of waiting till a vacancy occurs. I must have work now, to-day! It is absolutely necessary!'

"It was on the tip of my tongue to tell him that it was absolutely necessary for him to leave that office and shut the door after him; but I looked at him again, and didn't say it.

"I saw that he was telling the truth, and that he must have work. It wasn't that he looked shabby, or that there was any suspicion of whining or snivelling about him. If there had been, out he would have gone in pretty quick time. But there was a look in his eyes—well, I hardly know how to describe it, but the man was desperate, and had some reason for being so.

"'What kind of work do you want?' I said, putting down the paper again.

"'Any kind.'

"'You mean that?'

"'I do. Anything that will put bread in the mouths of—' he choked a little, and stopped. Then, 'I came from Canada two days ago, with my wife and three children, and was robbed in the train of my wallet. I have not a penny!'

"'Come with me!' I said. And he followed me out of the works. His story might be true, or it might not, but I had thought of a way to test the metal of which he was made.

"The Stark mill, in which I had some interest, had been partly burned a few days before, and I had a gang at work, clearing away the rubbish. A dirty job it was; the men were up to their waists half the time in mud and water, and the whole place was a muddle of rusty iron and burnt timbers and what-not—looked like the end of the world, and the wrong end at that.

"The gang I had on were mostly Italians—it was too dirty work for a Yankee to touch, and even the Irish were shy of it. They were little, dark, monkey-looking fellows, working away, and chattering in their unearthly gibberish. I glanced from them to my gentleman, with his clear white skin, and hands which showed that, whatever trade he had worked at, clearing away wreckage hadn't been part of it—though he looked like one who might have taken a good deal of exercise in athletic sports.

"'Here is a job!' I said. 'The only one I know of. How do you like it?'

"'Well enough,' he said, as cool as possible.

"'You'll get a dollar and a half a day,' I told him. 'You'll get your death, too, probably. When will you go to work?'

"'In an hour,' he said. Well, off he went, and I hardly expected to see him again. But before the hour was out he was back again, in a flannel undershirt and a pair of old trousers. He took his pickax, and down he went into that hole as if it was an evening party, sir.

"Well, I went back to the office. I couldn't be hanging round watching the men, or the boss would have been making trouble; but my new hand stayed on my mind, somehow, and I strolled round by the wreck two or three times in the afternoon, making some errand, you understand, in that direction.

"That man was working, sir, like a —like a house afire. The Italians are good workers, none better, as a rule —but his pick went in and out three times for their twice, and there was no chattering in his corner of the hole. He had little breath to talk, if he had wanted to, for though he was a muscular fellow, you could see with half an eye that he had never done such work in his life before.

"The sweat poured down his face like rain, but he never stopped, never looked up, or knew that I or anyone else was near—just plodded away, swinging that pick as if there were nothing else in the world.

"'That's pluck!' said I to myself. 'If he doesn't die he'll do!'

"For all that, I thought he would give out after the first day—didn't think his strength would last. When he came in for his pay at night, he was shaky and pretty tired-looking; but he said never a word; just took his pay with the rest, and thanked me, and went off.

"The next morning I was very busy, and although I thought of my gentleman once or twice, I didn't manage to get down to the wreck till noon, soon after the whistle had blown for knocking off work.

"When I got there I saw the Italians lying round on the ground or squatting on the fences, eating their black bread and sausage, and chattering away as usual; but no sight of my gentleman in the flannel shirt.

"'Oho!' said I to myself. 'One day was enough for him, was it?' And I thought it would have been enough for me, too. When you are not used to the swing of a pick, the way it takes you in the back is something beyond belief. I turned to come away, and lo! there he was, sitting off in a corner by himself, all crouched up, with a great hunch of bread in one hand and a book in the other.

"I strolled up behind him and looked over his shoulder at the book. It was an Italian grammar, sir!

"My shadow falling on the book startled him, and he looked up. I suppose I must have looked as astonished as I felt, for he smiled and said: 'I couldn't afford to lose such an opportunity! The boss is very friendly, and I have learned several phrases. Buon giorno, signore!'

"'Are you a schoolmaster,' I asked, 'and working down in that hole?'

"'No,' he said, quietly. 'I am a bookkeeper. It is a great advantage for a bookkeeper to be able to read and answer foreign letters, and although I have some knowledge of French, it has never come in my way to hear Italian spoken. So now is my chance. I got this grammar for 15 cents,' he added, turning it over, with a smile—the book was pretty ragged and one cover was gone—'and I am getting on pretty well.'

"'Why in the name of everything foolish didn't you apply for a position as bookkeeper,' I asked, 'instead of this kind of thing?'

"'Nobody will take a bookkeeper without references. I shouldn't think much of a firm that did, I suppose,' he said, flushing. 'My references were in my wallet that was stolen, and it will be a week and more before I get new ones, as my native town is off the main lines and letters take a good while to get there. I've always been fond of open air and exercise,' he added, with a quizzical look at the hole where he had been digging, 'and now I am getting lots of it.'

"'Back stiff?' I suggested.

"'So, so! I'll manage, though—often been worse after a day's rowing—and this is just as good bread as any other,' and he took a bite out of his hunch and looked at his book, as much as to say he had talked enough and wanted to be back at his grammar.

"I walked off and didn't see him again till he came for his pay in the evening, shaky again, but smiling as if he had had an excursion down the harbor. So it went on till the fourth day. Every day I looked to see him give out; but his pluck kept him up, and it's my belief he would have worked in that hole and got stronger and stronger—if something hadn't turned up.

"The fourth day I was sitting in the office, when the door opened and in came Green, from the boiler works over the way. 'Morning,' he said. 'Do you know of a bookkeeper? Our poor fellow, who's been sick for so long, died yesterday. I have to think about getting another.'

"I shook my head, but an idea came to me.

"'Will you take a man on trial?'

"'What kind of a man?' asked Green.

"'Well, I hardly know,' said I. 'I think he's a pretty good kind, but I've only known him four days. I can answer for his power of work,' and I told the man's story.

"Green went out with me, saw the young man, liked his looks and engaged him on the spot. He finished his day's work, came out of his hole in the mud, shook hands with me and the next day found a home for the rest of his life.

"That is seven or eight years ago, and he has been at the boiler works ever since. If he's not to be made a partner soon I've been misinformed to-day —and that is what put him into my head when you were talking about pluck just now. That man, sir, had the real article; and when a man has the real article, and is honest to boot, don't talk to me about his not succeeding in life. Going? Well, good morning! Good luck to you in your new venture, and let your watchword be—Pluck!"

Rheumatism

Rheumatic pains are the cries of protest and distress from tortured muscles, aching joints and excited nerves. The blood has been poisoned by the accumulation of waste matter in the system, and can no longer supply the pure and health sustaining food they require. The whole system feels the effect of this acid poison; and not until the blood has been purified and brought back to a healthy condition will the aches and pains cease.

Mrs. James Kell, of 707 Ninth street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes as follows: "A few months ago I had an attack of Sciatic Rheumatism in its worst form: The pain was so intense that I became completely prostrated. The attack was an unusually severe one, and my condition was regarded as being very dangerous. I was attended by one of the most able doctors in Washington, who is also a member of the faculty of a leading medical college here. He told me to continue his prescriptions and I would get well. After having it filled twelve times without receiving the slightest benefit, I declined to continue his treatment any longer. Having heard of S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) recommended for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair however, to give the medicine a trial, and after I had taken a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon thereafter had no use for them at all. S. S. S. having cured me sound and well. All the distressing pains have left me, my appetite has returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health.

SSS the great vegetable purifier and tonic, is the ideal remedy in all rheumatic troubles. There are no opiates or minerals in it to disturb the digestion and lead to ruinous habits.

We have prepared a special book on Rheumatism which every sufferer from this painful disease should read. It is the most complete and interesting book of the kind in existence. It will be sent free to any one desiring it. Write our physicians fully and freely about your case. We make no charge for medical advice.

Mr. Perry completely won his audience and met with a deservedly warm reception, that grew more enthusiastic after each number, and ended in numerous recalls. He has added another to the limited list of American successes in Berlin.---Berlin Times.

Exports of This Country Exceed Those of Any Other Nation.

A Comparison of the Commerce of the Principal Countries of World Shows Wonderful Development of Our Own.

Commercial conditions throughout the world in the closing months of 1900 are pictured in a table presented in the last number of the Monthly Summary of Commerce and Finance, just issued by the treasury bureau of statistics. The table shows the imports and exports of the principal countries of the world during such parts of the calendar year 1900 as can be shown from the latest available data, and compares the same with the corresponding month of the preceding year, thus presenting a picture of the growth of the world's commerce in the present year as compared with that of the preceding year. The table which thus presents the latest available data for the current year necessarily includes only those countries which publish monthly or quarterly statements of their commerce.

A comparison of the commerce of the principal countries of the world with that of the United States in 1900 and of the growth or reduction of their commerce with our own development during the year presents some facts of especial interest in considering the wonderful development of our own commerce in the year and century just closed.

Taking the countries in their alphabetical order as arranged in the table, the facts presented are as follows:

CANADA: The imports of three months ending with September, 1900, are $47,736,000, against $43,699,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of three months ending with September, 1900, are $53,023,000, against $43,994,000 in the corresponding months of last year.

FRANCE: The imports of ten months ending with October, 1900, are $703,888,000, against $716,102,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of ten months ending with October, 1900, are $647,074,000 in the corresponding months of last year.

GERMANY: The imports of nine months ending with September, 1900, are $952,019,000, against $952,014,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of nine months ending with September, 1900, are $714,060,000, against $774,023,000 in the corresponding months of last year. In the case of Germany alone specie and bullion are included in this statement.

BRITISH INDIA: The imports of five months ending with August, 1900, are $92,018,000, against $93,324,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of five months ending with August, 1900, are $126,888,000, against $144,006,000 in the corresponding months of last year.

ITALY: The imports of ten months ending with October, 1900, are $248,160,000, against $239,331,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of ten months ending with October, 1900, are $210,857,000, against $222,109,000 in the corresponding months of last year.

MEXICO: The imports of two months ending with August, 1900, are $9,561,000, against $8,485,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and the exports of two months ending with August, 1900, are $11,052,000, against $10,423,000 in the corresponding months of last year.

A Baltimore dentist had in his employ a colored boy, whom he called Chocolate. While the dentist was alone in his office one day the boy entered and said: "Doctor, was you visiting at —— Mount Vernon place, last night?" The doctor was surprised at the question, but answered that he was, and supplemented the answer by asking how Chocolate knew he was there and why he had asked the question. Chocolate grinned and replied: "I knowed you was there because I was visiting a lady at the same house."
